

Off to Helsinki for the Eikonopoia symposium

Written by Segolene Tarte

Friday, 08 October 2010 10:42 - Last Updated Friday, 08 October 2010 16:10

Two of the eSAD team members will be going to Helsinki at the end of October (28-29) for the Eikonopoia symposium.

The symposium is subtitled: "Digital imaging of ancient textual heritage: technological challenges and solutions". More details about the event can be found here.

Prof. Alan Bowman will be chairing a plenary session, and Dr Ségolène Tarte will be presenting a paper entitled: "Image capture and processing for enhancing the legibility of incised texts" (to be published in the Commentationes Humanarum Litterarum series of the Finnish Society of Sciences and Letters, and currently retrievable from our reports and publications section).

Looking forward to this event!